'Plant Trees-Plant Dollars'

As the sign on the planter shows, when you "Plant Trees (you' Plant Dollars". First shipment of 50,000 loblolly pine seedlings was delivered Monday to a county landowner by Appomattox county forester Warren Taylor (left) and Chief Forest Warden David M. Smith (right). The crews will start planting these immediately, says forester Taylor and plans now call for the planting of 50,000 trees a week during the planting season. Landowners are invited to convert low production acreage into a green - growing investment - loblolly pine. It's as simple as a phone call to either Taylor or Smith. They have the details on reforestation for profit and conservation. David Smith's daughter, Diane, did the lettering and artwork on the potted seedlings which have gone on display in business places in the county.

Delinquent Taxpayers Face Legal Action From Town Attorney

Appomattox town taxpayers with overdue personal or property taxes on the books face legal action in the very near future according to an agreement reached Monday evening at Town Council meeting with the town's attorney Harry Gordon Lawson. Attorney Lawson said that forms are ready "in order to attach property for town taxes". He said that some taxes are "uncollectible" — that the taxes were on personal property dating back years ago and were levied on persons who have moved to far distant locations.

David Nash, Appomattox contractor, appeared before Council to ask the town's support for an airport. Nash, pilot, himself, said that an airport "will benefit the community and any industry we get here." He explained that state funds would pay for half the cost of an airport, estimating that $100,000 would have to be raised locally. He said, further, that there are at least 18 pilots in the immediate area.

Mayor H. B. Pack remarked, "I'm sure the town and county would like an airport", and he urged Nash to continue working on the project.

The council, with $150 in the budget to support the publicity and public relations work of the Appomattox Chamber of Commerce, agreed to send this year's fund to the Chamber within a few days.

Mrs. Calvin Robinson was appointed council's "flower chairman" to take care of memorials for members of the council's immediate families. Flower arrangements and wreaths are paid for by council members, themselves and are not paid for from the town treasury.

Town manager C. S. Booth, reporting on the current rat control program said that a state inspector said the problem here is "not as bad as other places". Mr. Booth said that rat bait has been placed in manholes and other strategic locations to kill sewer rats.

ACHS Girls Meet Staunton River Friday In Final Game Of Season

The girls basketball team of Appomattox County High School, better known in District Four as the Rebelettes, will meet Staunton River on their own court here Friday night for the final game of the season. The ACHS girls have a 12-1 record for the season thus far, losing by only one point to Tunstall in a game played there.

Staunton River has a 6-0 record and is one of the top teams in the District. Considering the fact that Staunton River beat Tunstall earlier in the season, the game scheduled for Friday night at 6:30 p.m., in the ACHS Gym should be even more of a challenge for our home team.

Due to the probation imposed upon our school, the girls basketball team will be unable to participate in the tournament play-off games, but we know that the ACHS Girls Basketball Team is truly "THE CHAMPIONSHIP TEAM" again this year.

In eleven years of coaching our girls basketball team at the High School, Mrs. Louise Martin has taken her team on six tournaments and won the Championship five out of the six times.

Congratulations, Coach, for a job well done!!

Food Distribution Plan Offered County

Local Management Less Costly

Management of the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture food distribution plan, in effect here since July, 1968, was offered to the Appomattox Board of Supervisors, meeting Friday morning.

Appearing before the board were Thomas R. Yeatts, supervisor, commodity distribution of the Va. Dept. Agriculture and Rick M. Harhold, field representative, commodity distribution, Va. Dept. of Agriculture. Accompanying them was Mrs. Hazel R. Mann, superintendent, Appomattox County Welfare Dept.

Yeatts explained that the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture will release federal funds now used in the program through the Va. Dept. Agriculture instead of managing the program from the federal level. At the time the program was introduced in 1968 both the County Welfare Dept. and the Board of Supervisors refused to be in charge of the program. Reason for the change — "localities can manage the program more economically," he said.

Yeatts said that county takeover could take place as soon as the change is approved locally, but that current contracts with Ivey Holland, E. Sears Co., where office space and distribution center is located, will run until June 30.

Applications are on file for 770 persons asking for food with 683 recipients last month, said Yeatts.

Supervisors referred the matter to the Appomattox County Welfare Board.

Virginia Dept. of Agriculture officials and Mrs. Hazel R. Mann, Appomattox Welfare Dept. appeared before the county board of supervisors Friday offering the county the direct supervision of USDA Food Commodity distribution now being handled by federal officials. On the left, Rick Harhold, field representative and on the right, Thomas R. Yeatts, supervisor, commodity distribution. Reason for the change, they say, is that local supervision is more economical. Canned meat, cheese, flour, meal, peanut butter and other commodities were given to 683 Appomattox residents last month
